

Activity 2: Persuasive games

We will need to be really persuasive in our writing. Let's warm up by playing a couple of persuasive games

★ Crazy Persuasions

You could do this in a pair taking it in turns, on your own or even try to write the little persuasions down.

Take one minute to try to persuade ...

- ✓ A cat to make friends with a dog
- ✓ A parent to let you stay out late
- ✓ A teacher to cancel all homework
- ✓ A prince/princess to marry you
- ✓ The England manager to pick you for the team
- ✓ A wicked witch to change her ways

★ Estate Agent Role Play

Take the role of an estate agent whose job it is to try and sell houses. You have a difficult challenge here to sell the run-down property in the picture.

- Write your own persuasive paragraph
- Use the writing frame and add in pushy, persuasive language
- Design the poster that would be stuck in the estate agent's window

The estate agent role play

For sale! A ____ opportunity to buy this ____ house. This ____ building is perfect for people who like _____. It is ____ placed for the ____ and railway. The ____ garden and ____ car parking is a ____ bonus. It comes complete with a ____ that money just cannot buy. The ____ adds that ____ factor. The ____ price means that it won't last ____.
